Is Thanksgiving Over?

A preacher friend began his sermon on the last Sunday of November with the rhetorical question, "Is Thanksgiving over?" "YES!" came the instant reply from a particularly outspoken toddler. That made me laugh, but the question was valid: Is thanksgiving over because Thanksgiving has come and gone for another year?

Do I require a holiday to be thankful? Is my gratitude to God limited to one day a year? Was I even thankful on Thanksgiving, or did I grumble about my gluttony, cheer for my favorite football team, and fall asleep in a tryptophan-induced coma without ever really giving thanks?

Jesus healed ten lepers in Luke 17. Only one returned to thank Him. To that one he said, "Thy faith hath made thee whole" (Luke 17:19). This could well be rendered, "Thy faith hath saved thee." He was already made well, but his gratitude may have prompted Jesus to forgive his sins as well. Of the others, Jesus could only ask, "Were not ten cleansed? But where are the nine?" (Luke 17:17).

Jesus died for me. Have I returned thanks by giving Him my life in obedience? Or am I one of the nine?
