Why We Misunderstand the Bible – We Believe It Is Not Enough.

Often, honest people cannot agree about religion because they cannot agree that the Bible alone is a sufficient guide in religious matters. Accepting that the Bible is inspired by God, they believe it requires a companion, another inspired book or human message of some kind.

Yet the Bible makes unmistakable claims about its sufficiency. 2 Timothy 3:17 states that scripture is given so "that the man of God may be perfect, thoroughly furnished unto all good works." 2 Peter 1:3 records, "His divine power hath given unto us all things that pertain unto life and godliness, through the knowledge of him that hath called us to glory and virtue." John 16:13 records Christ's promise to His apostles, "When he, the Spirit of truth, is come, he will guide you into all truth."

These three passages taken together teach something quite disturbing. If I must have another revelation to direct me to do a particular work, that work cannot be a part of "all good works." It must not have anything to do with "life and godliness" as God would have it. If some new "truth" is revealed to me that was not revealed to and by the apostles, then that "truth" cannot be truth at all.

How can we understand the Bible alike if we bring along baggage that the Bible itself says is unnecessary and untrue? Let's get back to the Bible and the Bible alone!
